

The Janes Families of Grates Cove, Newfoundland

Researched and written by Susan Snelgrove

Synopsis

The Janes family (Jeanes, Jeans, Jaynes, Jeynes) originates in the town of Trinity, Trinity Bay in the mid 1700's. There is an association with at least one Janes member to the Lester family of Poole, Dorset. It is very likely that branch came across the bay from Trinity to Grates Cove. This earlier Janes family can be explored in another research article.

This 16 page research paper with 20 citations discusses and attempts to answer the following questions:

- 1) Who were the parents of Josiah Janes of Grates Cove?
- 2) Who were the wife and children of Josiah Janes of Grates Cove?

Given the unknown identity of Josiah's family, a deep review of all Janes families of Grates Cove, Newfoundland are undertaken by the writer to discern Janes family connections. This history spans the period from the late 1700's through to 1911.

Using Voter's Lists, I have conclusively confirmed that there were two distinctly different William Janes at the time in question, one Senior and one Junior.
